Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree,
 Santa Claus wants to steal apples now, he wants to steal not only in winter but also in summer when the sun is shining
 Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree

Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree

Deep voice: I am the Santa Claus!
Another deep voice: Show me your fir tree, and I'll tell you who you are!

Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree,
 Santa Claus wants to steal everything,
 he searches through all the drawers, after mobile phones, jewelry and MP3s

Child: Daddy said his bank had stolen all his money.

Mother: No, the bank didn't steal anything, it (the money!) has just ... gone away!

Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree,
 Santa Claus wants to steal everything,
 he reaches for money, profit, returns,
 he gambles wherever he can

Child: If everybody is allowed to steal everything – then ... what is the reason for the existence of ... money?

Mother: Mmmh, yeah, ... look at it this way ...

The child interrupts: So the financial crisis and Santa Claus – they did abolish the money, right?

Mother: No!

Another voice: No no no ...

Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree,
 Santa Claus wants to steal everything,
 he even buys credits – and
 he gambles wherever he can

Deep voice: I pinch all things, I am the Santa Claus, I pinch all things!
Another deep voice: Show me your fir tree, and I'll tell you who you are!

info:

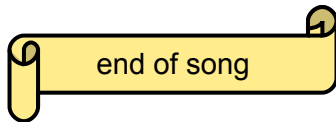

„Oh Tannenbaum“ is an old german traditional christmas song. The original text goes like this:

Oh holy fir tree,
 Oh holy fir tree,
 how green are your leaves ...

Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree,
 Santa Claus wants to steal everything,
 he even buys credits – and
 he gambles wherever he can

Oh holy fir tree, oh holy fir tree
 Santa Claus wants to steal everything

Deep voice: We are all children of god!
 Child: Mum!
 Mother: Just gone away!
 Another voice: Financial crisis
